A diagnosis of leukemia, lymphoma, myeloma or myelodysplastic syndrome brings daily challenges. The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society (LLS) is the world's largest voluntary health organization dedicated to funding blood cancer research, education and patient services. LLS is committed to providing information and support to people living with these cancers and to the health professionals involved in their care.

Map the best route from diagnosis through treatment and survivorship.

The Information Resource Center (IRC) helps each person to navigate through the treatment, financial and social challenges facing people living with cancer. The IRC offers the most accurate and current information on blood cancers. IRC information specialists educate patients, families and caregivers on how to communicate with their healthcare teams – and connect with community and national resources – to expedite receiving quality treatment and support services.

Cancer clinical trials, sometimes called research studies, are conducted by physicians to improve the care and treatment of cancer patients. Clinical trials can be an important treatment option for all blood cancers. They offer patients access to new therapies being tested to see if they can increase survival and/or improve quality of life.

The IRC offers clinical trials information, including guidance on how patients can work with their physicians to find out if a specific study is an appropriate treatment option. Information specialists conduct individual clinical trial searches for patients, families and healthcare providers.

Leave a message for a call back. Order free booklets 24/7.

Callers can also use the IRC automated response system, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week:

- to order free materials on blood cancers
- to find the location of their nearest LLS chapter
- to listen to recorded information about LLS and our programs
- to leave a message. Messages are returned the next business day

Booklets and other information are also available on our Web site, www.LLS.org.

LLS has 68 chapters in the United States and Canada. Each chapter has a patient service manager to help patients and caregivers connect with our programs and community resources. Call (800) 955-4572 or visit www.LLS.org to locate your nearest chapter and learn about the free programs and services offered there.
